

Why do I want to be a Credit Union Director?

When I was first elected to the Biggar and District Credit Union Board in 2015, I felt somewhat overwhelmed although that feeling soon changed. It has been a super learning experience in many ways and a very rewarding educational journey into the organization's process, and procedures while holding the cooperative values of being membership driven, and the rewards of being part of the community. I would strongly encourage anyone interested to become part of the Credit Union process through the upcoming director elections. It really is a great opportunity for self development through education and participation in our own community cooperative full service financial organization.

- Jim Rickwood